Uncle Sam Says

Ten years can make a big difference. That youngster, now in pitmils, will be grown up and ready for college in 10 years. Or you may be ready to tackle that pet project of yours, a new home, retirement, or starting a small business. Yes, 10 years can make a difference in many things. Money, for instance. If you go about it right you can make today's money grow, right along with dollars for the future.

Figure, today, how much you'll need in 10 years. Then put aside the amount in U. S. Savings Bonds each week, enough to equal the total you have in mind, always remembering that for every three dollars you invest today, you will receive four dollars in 10 years. If you are on a payroll, join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. If you are self-employed, enroll for the Bond-a-Month Plan at your own bank.

Three Danes to Follow Viking Route to America

COPENHAGEN. — Three Danish wireless operators, back from two years' service at the weather station in Thule in northern Greenland, will set out on a voyage to North America next spring following the routes of the ancient Vikings via Norway and Greenland.

During the long Arctic nights at the Thule station, the men planned the cruise. Now they have bought a modern "Viking ship," a double-ender for $5,000.

Headed by 25-year-old Carl Johann Petersen, the three will start their expedition in March or April along the same route which the Viking chief, Erik (the Red) Thorvaldson, sailed when he discovered Greenland in 982.

British Will Be Given Top Production Secret

LONDON. — Britain's most important import from America in 1949 won't cost her a dollar.

It will be the secret of United States high-geared production.

To get it, probably a thousand Britons, from the overalled mechanic in the shop to the morning-coated executive in the front office, will journey to the States in small working parties.

They will meet their opposite numbers in American plants and seek to absorb through personal experience and observation knowledge and ideas that can be adapted to the techniques of manufacturing on their side of the Atlantic.

Arrangements are being made by the Anglo-American Council on Productivity, formed at the request of Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps.

First, the council made a series of quick inspections of plants giving a cross-section of British industry—best to worst. It concluded Britain's best is equal to America's best, but that on the other end of the scale standards are very poor, so, that overall, British production compares unfavorably.

Sending British envoys to America to learn its "secrets" is just one of several steps recommended. Almost as much stress is laid on the need for Britons to exchange information among themselves. Some low-production plants need only to look next door to learn how to improve.

Dentists Voice Hope Tooth Decay May Be Reduced

NEW YORK.—Dental researchers have offered hope that a new type of mouthwash and tooth powder may reduce tooth decay sharply.

Decay has been cut more than 40 per cent in some experiments.

The new technique still is in the development stage and the 95 per cent of Americans who are subject to cavities may have to wait at least a short while to gain a new degree of immunity from the dentist's drill.

Dr. Donald A. Wallace, secretary of the council on dental therapeutics of the American Dental association, said the results of preliminary studies "offer hope that dental caries (decay) may be at least partly prevented by the proper use of specially formulated dentifrices."

Experiments by the graduate dental research group in New York and by college dental schools show what the "ammident formula" can do.

Tooth decay was reduced 25 to 89 per cent when patients used the new product two or three times daily, right after eating. The added immunity from decay produced by the formula lasts several hours.

Some dental researchers say the new formula may be of even greater use in fighting decay than the fluorine process now being used in public school experiments.

Fluorine is effective only for children, they say. The "ammident formula" works for children and adults.

Ape 'First Class' Gets Another Chance in USCG

PEARL HARBOR.—Thockmorton Percival Kauber Burton, probably the only APE First Class to appear on navy records, has been given an "undesirable" discharge at Sangley Point NAS in the Philippines. He went AWOL, a navy spokesman here said, and the navy decided he wasn't dependable.

But the coast guard at Talampulan has ignored this one black mark on his record and decided to give him another chance—and he can retain his old rank.

T. P. K. Burton is a gibbon ape picked up by naval transport fliers in Rangoon, Burma, and returned to the Philippines for a mascot.

Colored Dots

January 6, 1949

Editor, Times-Virginian,
Dear Sir,

You will please give me a little space in your paper, as I wish to express myself in regards to our home and country and friends. I am extremely thankful to the Lord to see the beginning of the New Year, 1949. I want to try to express myself in regards to what I think is right and what is wrong. It doesn't seem like it takes any one to tell us how to do wrong, we seem to understand that way. We are told that we are born in sin. But to do right is what we have to tell, and we do that. It is our duty to teach and live the life that we may help others to come to Christ. Let our light shine, striving to do what the Lord wants us to do and make this world a better place for us to live in. Let us ask for more love in our hearts for each other. Our home nation and the foreign nations. May the Lord bring us together in much love and peace with each other. We are only here on this side of life for a while. We are looking for a great day and a better home in the next life. We are told in His word that He is gone to prepare a place for us. Let us all strive to be ready to meet Him.

Your friend,

Henry Phelps.

New Director to Retain Policies of Boys Town

BOYS TOWN, NEBR.—The new director of Boys Town does not plan to deviate from the policies of his famed predecessor, Father Flanagan.

Several months under new leadership have brought no changes or shakeup in the city of little men.

In small things as in big things, Msgr. Nicholas H. Wegner sticks to the pattern established by Msgr. Edward P. Flanagan, who died May 15 in Berlin.

Like Father Flanagan, Msgr. Wegner holds "there is no such thing as a bad boy." Also like his predecessor, he plans to travel and "spread the Boys Town idea."

Just as Father Flanagan did, Father Wegner makes trips with the football team, makes a pre-game dressing room visit, watches games from the players' bench and delivers a half-time pep talk. He says he plans to make only such minor changes at Boys Town as changing times dictate.

More Women Hold Posts as Solons Now Than Ever

NEW YORK.—Far more women are seated in the parliaments of the world today than ever before. Hundreds have gained their seats in recognition of the fight women waged in World War II, in both underground and open warfare.

A check in Europe, Latin America and the Far East shows there are at least 685 feminine legislators and that the most spectacular increase has occurred in countries where women had little or no political stature before the war. Outstanding among these are France, Italy and Japan. In other European countries the number of women lawmakers has increased from two to eight times since the immediate postwar period.

By contrast, in the United States and Great Britain where women's political activity is a much older story, the increase is much less. The United States moved from five to nine women national lawmakers and Britain from 13 to 21.

Effect Studied.

How effective are women legislators? In the United States and Britain they have been as effective as men in helping produce legislation of primary importance. In countries where they were relatively new at the job, opinions vary.

Men legislators of many countries say their feminine colleagues' voices are rarely heard, and that the laws they do push are confined chiefly to the social field. The women answer that such laws are extremely important because they correct social evils believed to have been at the roots of many wars.

In a few parliaments women serve on important economics and political committees. Here is the story in different countries:

Fifty women now are seated in the parliament of France, where before the war women played such a minor political role that thousands did not even want the vote. Thirty-eight are in the national assembly (lower house) and two are vice presidents.

In Italy, where women had no political voice under the monarchy and Fascism, 43 women are seated in the republic's first parliament of 914 members. In last April's important general elections women votes outnumbered men and some Communists credited them with defeating Communism's drive for majority political power.

Norway Has Eight.

Scandinavia's record is less spectacular than some, but it shows a steady gain. Norway has eight women national lawmakers, compared to one before the war. Sweden has 27, compared with a prewar 11, and women are included on every important Riksdag committee. Denmark's women legislators have nearly trebled since 1939 and now total 23.

In Belgium (where the only women allowed to vote are war widows and certain war-bereaved mothers) men voters have seated eight women in parliament—double the number there before the war. Belgian women deputies have supported measures suppressing legalized prostitution, favoring credits for day nurseries and giving all women the vote.

The Netherlands has one woman in the senate and five in the house.

Unfamiliar Mechanism Of Bus Confuses Driver

WILKES - BARRE, PA.—For 28 years, Andrew Ondash was a trolley operator who knew every inch of rail along the line. He knew, too, that every where the tracks went, the trolley was sure to go. Then the company put buses on the line he had served so many years.

The new mechanism was unfamiliar. But Andrew took a firm grip on the wheel and turned. The bus left the highway, hurdled a ditch and ploughed 10 feet into the underbrush.

Andrew's bosses said it was all right—they felt everyone must learn some time.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

We Both Won This One

Blew my top the other morning when I discovered a shirt I'd put on had two buttons missing.

"Joe," the missus says, "do you ever read what you write? For a man who writes newspaper pieces all about tolerance, you sometimes show a lot of race prejudice."

"Race prejudice!" I hollers. "No one can accuse me of that." "I mean prejudice against the entire human race," she interrupts with a smile. "Why get mad at the world over two little buttons?" That took the wind out of me.

From where I sit (as I told the missus that evening), a lot of us sometimes get too worked up over little things ... little differences of opinion or taste. One person prefers beer or ale, another prefers cider or lemonade. But why criticize the other fellow just because his tastes aren't the same as ours? "That sounds more like you, Joe," she laughs, snipping off a thread. (It so happens she was sewing on buttons.)

This Pet Robin Has Plenty Of Luck but It's All Bad

CAPE ELIZABETH, MO.—Things have been tough for Mrs. Joseph H. Johnson's pet robin.

While the bird still was recuperating with a broken wing and injured leg received in a collision with an automobile, a boy hit it on the head with a croquet mallet. Mrs. Johnson pried open the unconscious bird's beak and administered water and later juicy worms.

Within a week, the invalid hobbled onto a road and was struck by a truck. A neighbor placed the apparently dead bird beneath a tree and went for a shovel to bury it. When she returned, the "corpse" was very much alive, though in a staggering condition.

Well on its way to recovery for the third time, the bird now faces a critical housing problem, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are Florida-bound for the winter and unable to find anyone to care for the robin.

U. S. and Britain still carry on trade with Russia.

Gov. Thurmond, of S. C., will attend inauguration.

Polio Victim Plans To See the World From a Wheel Chair

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. — Bert Kopperl is getting restless in his wheel chair.

South America is beckoning, and the wheel chair is all oiled up and ready to go after recently bringing 30-year-old Kopperl back from a 25,000-mile camera tour of Europe. Special equipment enabled him to take more than 300 outstanding pictures on the jaunt, which will be exhibited by the Pasadena art institute and in Los Angeles.

Kopperl is paralyzed from the waist down, but he is a better commercial photographer now than he was before the war and when polio struck him down in the Philippines in 1945. He was there as a captain of antiaircraft artillery.

He decided to overcome his physical handicap, which restricts movement of his arms to one-third that of a normal person, and developed new photographic techniques. He boarded a Greek freighter and wheeled himself through Italy, France, Greece, Algiers, Cyprus and Egypt in search of picture material.

He specialized in photographing things as they looked 2,000 years ago, and he did more than he set out to do. Crowds gathered wherever he went with his strange equipment and exciting adventures befell him. His was the first wheel chair ever to reach the top of the Acropolis in Greece.

At present Kopperl is busy studying travel folders of South America. The lure is strong and even his wheel chair seems restless to him.

Court grants Little Creek ferry route.
